

11-19-2019

to the future queer (stay here).

liberal studies has become a family to me, but in every family, issues can arise. this family is yours, take it and continue to make it a space for every future educator. Put your own stamp on it. Create something new. But most importantly, find that community and bring people - allies and members - to make the most out of your time here. Give the mic to any who might not take it on their own.

listen. _____

question. _____

show up. _____

do not be silenced. _____

as an aspiring educator, you have the duty to not remain neutral.

Intersectionality is key.

love,

Sarah (your resident pansexual)
class of 2020